1770 AFRICAN PRIDE from Ireland I 59
Min

South Africa's Constitution was the first in the world to prohibit discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation. But rights belie the reality for many. Homophobia has found violent expression in assaults, rape and murders. In South African townships lesbian women are frequently the targets of some of the most brutal of these attacks; their sexuality condemned as un-African, un-Christian and unacceptable.

However there is growing movement of people who are choosing to meet this violence with visibility by way of township Prides and protests. Each person bearing a banner has their own reason to be visible. It is through their stories that African Pride explores this determined, relentless and colourful movement.
